ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Michelle Worthington is an international award-winning author of 33 children's books, an international speaker, screenwriter and businesswoman. She is the founder of Share Your Story Digital, Anthology Angels, Books in Homes, and is a Community Ambassador for Children's Rights Queensland and Life's Little Treasures. With her three book-loving boys as inspiration, Michelle celebrates empowering readers and storytellers to always dream big.

ABOUT THE ILLUSTRATOR

Adyna Ferre is a designer and book illustrator. She creates illustrations for picture books and animations with DLF animations.

THE STORY

Baby Bird is coming.

Mouse wants to help.

Can she get used to the responsibility of babysitting before Mama Bird comes back?

A story of kindness and friendship and learning responsibility for children and families.

THE TEXT

The Mouse and The Egg is the second book in a series created by Michelle Worthington for children with sensory difficulties arising from neurodiversity. The Mouse and The Egg is gently told, playful, and sensitive with its use of language.

With sensory friendly storytelling, The Mouse and The Egg is a perfect read-aloud story that helps neurodiverse children learn that friendship and responsibility can be hard sometimes, but it can also be rewarding and good things, like Friendships, trust, and kindness can grow over time.

A perfect read-aloud and discussion starter for social and emotional literacy in the classroom.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

With gentle colour on each page, created for the neurodiverse child with sensory impairment, The Mouse and The Egg was originally produced as an animation.

Adyna Ferre has used her talent to create a softness to the illustrations, while showing emotion on the characters faces which is great for social and emotional classroom discussion.

A graphic designer, Adyna Ferre has been able to interpret the text beautifully. Through her illustrations, children are able to “see” the changes and emotions that are happening on each page.

THEMES IN THE STORY

Friendship. Responsibility. Kindness. Trust.

Together Michelle and Adyna have created illustrations that cater for the child who experiences sensory overload

Children often don't fully understand that friendship, kindness, trust and responsibility are inter-connected.

Friendships can be hard. Expectations can be high. It's the same with responsibility. How do we navigate these emotions?

Kindness, Friendship. Responsibility. Making good choices.

Recognising interconnectedness, boundaries, kindness, social awareness, self-awareness.

Social and Emotional literacy – friendship, growth, responsibility, making choices, trust, mindset.

UNDERSTANDING BIG EMOTIONS

Brainstorm ideas about what friendship, responsibility, and kindness can be.

Does Mouse make good choices?

What does fear feel like? Look like? Can you touch it?

Are fear and anxiety related? Is this how Mouse felt when Egg left the nest?

How can Mouse identify her fears before she gets scared?

What are some ways Mouse can manage her social awareness and responsibility skills?

What happens if we don't make good choices?

What happens if we do?

How does Mumma Bird feel when she finds Egg gone?

What else could Mouse have done to make better choices?

What does Mouse learn about her experience?

CASEL 5 POINT FRAMEWORK

<https://casel.org/fundamentals-of-sel/what-is-the-casel-framework>

All schools have a responsibility when implementing the CASEL framework in the curriculum to ensure that student learning is inclusive, and relevant to their experiences, abilities and talents.

For some students with diverse abilities and talents it may be necessary to provide a range of curriculum adjustments so they can access age-equivalent content and participate in learning on the same basis as their peers.

Some students may require adjustments to support how they see, hear, and/or process information or instruction. Students may require access to a wide range of approaches including, but not limited to:

- auditory, visual and kinesthetic methods of instruction
- simultaneous learning channels such as combinations of listening, speaking, reading, viewing and writing
- peer-assisted learning
- challenging individual and group extension activities.

Adjustments to the practical delivery of movement-based lessons will be necessary to ensure that some students with physical disability can access learning, participate fully and achieve on the same basis as their peers. These adjustments could include but are not limited to:

- adjustment to teaching styles and delivery of instructions
- negotiated changes to rules of games
- access to modified equipment
- changes to the learning environment to ensure accessibility and safety.

Further adjustments may involve but are not limited to:

- providing multi-sensory visual, auditory, tactile, and/or kinesthetic experiences and resources
- using resources and strategies such as picture cues or illustrative signs and labels for words such as key-subject terms, or steps in a process
- providing modified arts tools or accessible equipment or using approaches that enable students to participate in arts-making activities
- acknowledging equivalent terminology; for example, cultural or geographic differences in terminology
- designing open-ended tasks that provide flexibility and can be completed at different levels of complexity
- showcasing the practice of artists/performers who have adapted "typical" practice to suit their needs or whose work reflects aspects of their life, such as physical or mental health.
